Shepherding with the Flavors of North Carolina

By Sherri Robinson
Contributing Writer

After a successful event in 2018, the Good Shepherd Center returned to their favorite new venue, the Carolina Yacht Club, for the biggest yet Flavor of North Carolina event Saturday, Nov. 9, celebrating everything beautiful about life in the Old North State. The 6th Annual Flavor of North Carolina at Carolina Yacht Club was the signature fall fundraiser celebrating North Carolina, with a focus on food, drink, and experiences unique to our great state.

The Flavor of North Carolina event raises funds for Good Shepherd's mission to feed the hungry, shelter the homeless, and foster transition to housing in the Cape Fear Region. Guests enjoyed local food and beverages, music and a silent auction with packages and experiences that feature all the best the Carolinas have to offer.

The Carolina Yacht Club venue offered views of the Intracoastal and the ocean under a nearly full moon with brisk but invigorating cool winds. The menu included Italian meatballs, assorted mini quiche, fried cheese ravioli, crab-stuffed mushrooms, and chicken satay appetizers from Elijah's. Carolina Bay chefs offered a citrus greens salad, collard greens, local shrimp and grits, butterbean succotash, smoked Gouda mac & cheese, and salted caramel bread pudding. Jackson's Big Oak Barbecue dished up barbecue sandwiches in a glass with Off The Hoof Barbecue heaping on slow-roasted pulled pork barbecue. Desserts featured cookies by Goodness Gracie, Coconut cake by Take the Cake Bakers, and ice cream courtesy of Lewis Farms. North Carolina Craft Beer and Fine Wines were courtesy of Coastal Beverage Company with sodas and water from Coca-Cola Bottling Company

Wilmington police bring murder charges in Mills Creek Apt. case

The Wilmington Police Department has identified the deceased individual found at Mill Creek Apartments last Thursday as 58-year-old Kimberly Bland.

On Friday, November 8, Andrew Boynton, 56, was arrested for First Degree Murder and Motor Vehicle Theft in connection with her death. Due to some challenges surrounding this case, WPD said it was prevented from releasing this information until today.

On Thursday, November 7, officers were dispatched to Mill Creek Apartments around 4 p.m. in reference to a missing person. When they arrived, they found a deceased individual inside the apartment.

The medical examiner requested police leave the decedent untouched until an autopsy could be performed, which prevented WPD from identifying the victim and releasing details to the public.

The autopsy was performed this morning, confirming that this was a homicide.

Early on in the investigation, detectives developed several suspects.

Enough evidence pointed to Boynton that police were able to take out warrants for murder and begin active surveillance. Boynton quickly fled the state and was taken into custody by the Richmond Virginia Police Department Fugitive Task Force on Nov. 8 around 7:15 p.m.

Detectives traveled to Richmond and interviewed the suspect that night. Boynton had driven the victim's car to

Sailor with WB roots moving up college ranks

By Sherri Robinson
Contributing Writer

Wrightsville Beach native Chase Carraway continues to develop the sailing skills that he started building in local waters as a member of the Carolina Yacht Club, only now he competes as a member of the prestigious Hobart and William Smith Colleges Sailing Team in Geneva, N.Y. The proclamation of the college, "Preparing students to lead lives of consequence," mirrors Carraway's path.

Carraway recently competed in the 2019 LaserPerformance Men's Singlehanded Championships in Santa Barbara, California Nov. 10 and 11. He finished fourth in a field of 18 sailors giving Hobart it's the best finish since Rob Crane '09 was third in 2008. In his second trip to the ICSA Singlehanded Championships, he competed against sailors from Boston University, Brown, Cal State Long Beach, Christopher Newport, Coast Guard, College of Charleston, Merchant Marine Academy, Navy, Miami, St. Mary's (Maryland), Stanford, Tulane, Washington, and Wisconsin.

Carraway qualified for this year's championship with a third-place finish at the Carl Van Duyne MAISA Men's Singlehanded Championship where he compiled 83 points on the weekend, finishing 13 points behind St. Mary's Leo Butcher who won the regatta. He was in the top 10 in 11 of the 14 races and posted victories in the sixth and 12th races. He advanced to the Carl Van Duyne after winning the Laser North for the second straight year in Kings Point, New York, where he won four races and was in the top eight in the other four. In 2018, he finished ninth in Holland, Michigan, with six first-place finishes. Carraway is the first Hobart sailor since Sam Blouin '12 to compete in two ICSA Singlehanded Championships. Blouin was 15th in Tampa, Florida, in 2010 and improved seven places to eighth in Chicago in 2011.

In tightly contested racing throughout the weekend, the top four sailors finished the weekend separated by a mere five points. Carraway compiled 70 points on the weekend, missing the podium by a single point. St. Mary's College's Leo Boucher won the Glen S. Foster Trophy as the national champion, finishing with 65 points. On Saturday, 10 races wrapped up the championship Sunday with four races in light and spotty conditions.

At the end of racing Saturday, Carraway sat in seventh place at the with 66 points with seven top 10 finishes in the first 10 races, including a victory in the second race. He made a charge up the leader board with a perfect Sunday winning all four races contested. Last year, he finished ninth at the LaserPerformance Singlehanded Nationals.

During his freshman racing season, Carraway won The Rookie Award for Sailing presented to the outstanding first-year Hobart sailor. He also competed in 10 regattas, helped Hobart and Smith place eighth at LaserPerformance Team Race National Championship, won his collegiate debut, finishing first at the Laser North Qualifier, was third at the Carl Van Duyne, MAISA Singlehanded Championship, helped Hobart win the War Memorial Regatta, finishing second in A Division, and, competing as crew in A Division, helped Hobart and William Smith finish first at the Gill Coed Western Semifinal. Earlier this year, Carraway, after four days packed with racing on Little Egg Harbor in Beach Haven, New Jersey, won the 2019 U.S. Youth Sailing Championship in the Laser division.

As a rising high school junior, the college sophomore and his parents traveled to Medemblik, The Netherlands, to allow Chase to compete in the Laser Radial World Championships. Young Carraway was a member of the U.S. Sailing Olympic Development Program Summer Youth Laser Radial Worlds Travel Team comprised of three male radial sailors, and three female radial sailors Olympic Development Program coaches coached these sailors in Medemblik. For two second consecutive years Carraway was selected and proudly represented his home club, the Carolina Yacht Club here in Wrightsville Beach, the South Atlantic Yacht Racing Association-District 12, the Lauderdale Yacht Club, South Atlantic Yacht Racing Association High School Sailing, Gulf Coast Youth Sailing Association and the United States of America. While at Cape Fear Academy, coached by Erika Reineke, Carraway was a four-year varsity letter winner and won two national championships.

With Mom, "Boo," and Dad, Stanley, squarely in his corner, a work ethic beyond belief, and a fire in his youthful belly, Chase Carraway is sailing into history. All while pursuing his undergraduate degree, representing Hobart and William Smith Colleges, and continuing in his preparation to lead that life of consequence.

Wrightsville Beach Pilots New Voting Machine

By Sherri Robinson
Contributing Writer

Last week's municipal election not only resulted in giving Wrightsville Beach a new mayor and two new aldermen, it also served as a pilot test for a new voting machine option for New Hanover County. The New Hanover County Board of Elections tested the DS 200, a precinct-based ballot scanner and vote tabulator that combines the flexibility and efficiency of digital-imaging technology to support paper-based voting, taking traditional optical-scan ballot vote tabulation into the 21st century. And, Wrightsville Beach was the sole precinct chosen for this test.

The DS 200 ballot scanner and vote tabulator machine was chosen by the New Hanover County Board of Elections to meet mandated state law requirements to replace voting machines before the 2020 races. This machine assures the use of paper ballots with the added ability of the device to read each ballot with or without write-in votes whether inserted face-up or face-down. In August, the five-member North Carolina Board of Elections made ballot security the responsibility of local boards of elections. Many of those county election officials are in the process right now of making decisions on which machines to choose.

Election security experts agree that the old-fashioned paper ballot is currently the most secure way to vote. Hacking remains a constant threat hovering over electronic voting, something we were reminded of this summer when an 11-year-old boy at a hacking convention was able to hack into a replica of the Florida state elections website in just 10 minutes.

In 2013, the North Carolina General Assembly mandated that all voting use paper ballots. Switching to all paper ballot voting with updated machinery was to have been accomplished by January 2018, but all counties now have until Dec. 1 to comply.

This summer the board approved, on a 3-2 vote, three new vendors that counties could consider when buying new voting machines. All were purported to offer paper ballot machines, but just two of the machines are what

Governor appoints Saffo to new state film council

Wilmington Mayor Bill Saffo has been appointed to NC Gov. Roy Cooper's new Advisory Council on Film, Television, and Digital Streaming. Last month, Cooper announced the creation of the Council, which will lead efforts to continue growing North Carolina's film industry.

Several other Wilmington residents have been appointed to the new council, including Susi H. Hamilton as chair. Hamilton currently serves as secretary of the NC Department of Natural and Cultural Resources.

Other Wilmington residents named to the council include:

- Bill Vassar, executive vice-president of the Wilmington EUE/Screen Gems Studios;

- Dale Williams, freelance producer and unit production manager;
- Darla McGlamery, business agent for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees;
- Chip Hackler, associate professor in the Film Department at the University of North Carolina Wilmington;
- Johnny Griffin, director of the Wilmington Regional Film Commission, Inc.
- Judy Girard, television executive and founder of GLOW Academy, the Girls Leadership Academy of Wilmington; and
- Timothy M. Bourne, film producer and executive producer.

Consolidated. The signature cocktail was a Spiked Harvest Cider rendered by Carolina Bay. Established in 1983 as a modest Soup Kitchen, Good Shepherd has grown to become the largest provider of homeless services in the region. Current programs include the soup kitchen, Second Helpings food salvage and distribution program; Sgt. Eugene Ashley Transitional Living Center for homeless veterans; a day shelter provides the homeless with access to showers, clothing, and on-site mental health and health services; and a night shelter with 118 beds for homeless men, women and families with children. Operating with just 19 full-time staff, Good Shepherd is heavily volunteer-driven, relying on the donated time of more than 500 individuals. Good Shepherd recently opened SECU Lakeside Reserve, an affordable housing unit with 16 apartments for chronically homeless adults with disabilities, including seniors and veterans. An additional 24 units will open this summer.

people think of when we think of paper ballots. The third is a hybrid machine that uses a touchscreen; it produces a paper result of the voter's choices reproduced in bar code, i.e., not readable by a live person but read by another machine.

Numerous voting-rights activists expressed their concerns about the bar code machines at a state elections board public hearing and in the media. Among their worries is that the bar code machines would not produce reliable or useful postelection audits. One of the people worried is Josh Lawson, who was the general counsel for the state elections board until June. "I think that the bar code ballot process does not support or instill voter confidence to the same degree as hand-marked paper ballots," he said.

Elections Director Rae Hunter-Havens confirmed that we have paper ballot machines, the DS 200 tabulators. Voters mark with a pen and paper. Electronic voting is available for people with disabilities who may need them and to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

More than 20 North Carolina counties need to replace all their voting machines, including the large counties of Guilford (Greensboro) and Mecklenburg (Charlotte).

Wrightsville Beach ABC store opens in temporary location

The New Hanover County ABC Board opened a temporary Wrightsville Beach store, located at 7041 Wrightsville Avenue, last week. The operating hours for this location are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Due to the size constraints of this store, the product selection at this location will be limited to the most popular products that customers have purchased at the Wrightsville Beach store in the past. If a desired selection is not available at the store, customers can speak with a sales associate for assistance.

The new Wrightsville Beach ABC Store, which is being built across the street from the temporary location, is expected to open in early spring. This store is being built by the New Hanover County ABC Board, which is an independent entity and is not supported by any funding from New Hanover County or any municipality. This new store, as with all the facilities and expenses associated with the operation of the New Hanover County ABC Board, is fully funded by profits from the sale of liquors.

Always in Season

Time travel, dead comics, digital doctors collide at Cucalorus 25: a festival for everyone

The 25th annual Cucalorus Festival announces its mashup of film, performance, and technology for November 13-17 in downtown Wilmington. Nick Adkins (Digital Health Evangelist and Pinksocks Founder) delivers the festival keynote on the power of connection while G Yamazawa headlines the Visual Sound/Walls concert on opening night. Hot from their world premiere at the Toronto International Film Festival, Aaron Moorhead and Justin Benson return to Cucalorus with their newest feature Synchronic (starring Anthony Mackie), one of a select group of 31 features in the lineup. The festival's fun and wild shorts blocks will feature more than 150 films organized into thematic blocks named after hairstyles like Pigtail, Beehive, and Butt Cut. More than 50% of the films at the festival are directed by women.

OK GURGLE, by the interdisciplinary performance ensemble Hearsay & Hyperbole, headlines the festival's stage program and takes us on a funny and sometimes scary ride into the deep relationship we have with our devices. Festival favorites like Shirley Gnome and Roz McPhail return with new works. Shows run all day Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Whiskey Tango Foxtrot and the Brooklyn Arts Center.

On Saturday afternoon at Thalian Hall, Cucalorus will present a very special screening of Jackie Olive's documentary Always in Season, which won the moral urgency award at Sundance. Jackie worked on the project during a residency at Cucalorus in 2015. Director Jackie Olive and other special guests will be on hand for a discussion after the film and will also be leading a workshop on Friday afternoon at Connect called Reparations and Reconciliation in the US South. Prarthana Mohan's delightful comedy The MisEducation of Bindu follows a bullied Indian teen as she tries to wiggle her way out of school. Rounding out a great lineup of dark comedies, International Falls by Amber McGinnis follows a wife and mom who is stuck in a boring job but is about to launch her comedy career. The film screens on Saturday at 7pm in the Thalian Ballroom. Cucalorus has added UNCW's King Hall, home of the Film Studies department, to the roster of film screening venues this year.

Cucalorus Festival's Chief Instigating Officer Dan Brawley shared, "This should be a special year for us. We celebrate 25 years but we're also thinking about 25 years from now. As much as anything, Cucalorus has become a community of people who tell stories and talk about the future. And we're asking questions. How can we make this a better world for everyone?"
